ODE TO MONTHS OF THE YEAR
By Harry G. Chase

JANUARY
The first month of the year art thou,
With storm-tossed trees and naked bough,
Old winter's icy hand is laid
Upon the river, hilt and blade.

FEBRUARY
A snowy mantle far and wide,
Covers the land to distant tide,
When white and snow from shore to shore
And will not rest 'til time is o'er.

MARCH
March, stormy month of all the year,
What brags thou here to give us cheer,
Thy blustering winds so loud and cold,
To make us feel that life is old.

APRIL
The gentle rain falls on the earth
And gives to nature a new birth
The daffodil and crocus near
Denote that Spring again is here.

MAY
Oh, sunny skies of cheerful May,
What pleasant glimmers along our way
Of landscape fair and bosky dale,
The mountain high where all is well.

JUNE
Thou art a month of beauty and flowers
Thou deck with garlands my boy's bowers
The green grass waving with the wind's song,
Make one to wish June would linger long.

JULY
The sultry days have come again,
A languent silence to the rigors
A drowsing heat wheels through the air
As if it has no thought of care.

AUGUST
Oh! Sol from out the calm blue sky
His fervid heat pours forth from high,
The farmer views his growing corn,
With pleasant thoughts of harvest morn.

SEPTEMBER
A faint sweet perfume on the breeze
Attracts the scent of honey bees,
The orchard branches to and fro,
Disclose their treasures beaming so.

OCTOBER
"Thy Autumn smiles and clear bright days"
Gives us new life along our ways,
The yellow pumpkin on the vine
And purple grapes which make good wine.

NOVEMBER
The harvest of the year is done,
The joyful farms and the green corn,
Look back upon a well-spent year,
Their labor crowned with cheer.

DECEMBER
The softly falling flakes of snow,
Of winters coming cold and blue,
They tell, as wheeeling through the air,
And covering all the landscape bare.

DENMARK

Tuesday evening, Alice Sanborn and Grange Hall entertained at cards at the Franks, Pingree, Roger Bradbury and Hazel Wentworth, who are home from school for the holidays. Refreshments were served and dancing enjoyed.

Mrs. Freeman Sanborn entertained the "Weekly Eight" at bridge, Wednesday evening.

Now that the rush of Christmas is over,
it is hoped that the card parties Thursday afternoon at the library will be better attended.

The Grange Friday night dance was well attended; there being several from Brookfield, Hiram, and even as far away as Casco.

Santa was present at the community
Christmas tree, Saturday evening.

A MONTHLY CENSUS OF WATERFOWL

A monthly census of waterfowl at selected points through the United States is being planned by the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. The purpose of the census is to obtain through volunteer co-operators, more definite information regarding the distribution, migration and abundance of waterfowl throughout the country, Canada and Mexico. It will be an aid in administering Federal regulations for the protection of birds that migrate between the United States and Canada.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School 'Lesson'

(BY REV. P. B. FRYE, WATERFORD, Me., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for January 1

JOHN THE BAPTIST AND JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:1-13.

GOLDEN TEXT—He must increase, but I must decrease.

PRIMARY TOPIC—John Tells About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—John Welcomes and Baptizes Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPICS—John Prepares the Way for Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—John Heralds the Mighty One.

In order to understand the lessons for the first six months of the year it is necessary to grasp the central purpose of the Gospel according to Mark. The Old Testament is set forth as an ancient portrait of Jesus Christ. He is the Branch, the King (Jer. 23:5); the Branch, the Servant (Zech. 3:8); the Branch, the Man (Zech. 6:12); the Branch of the Lord (Isa. 4:2).

The fourth account in the New Testament called the Gospels, placed alongside of the Old Testament predictions, fits exactly. Matthew presents Him as the King; Mark, the Servant of the Lord; Luke as the Kinsman Redeemer and John as the Son of God. The theme of Mark's is the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God (ch. 1:1). The word Gospel means "good news." Jesus means "Savior." Christ means "anointed." It is good news therefore because it is the good tidings that God has anointed Jesus Christ to be the Savior of the world. The key verse is Mark 10:45, "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many." The key words are, "straightway," "forthwith," "immediately."

I. Who is Jesus Christ (1:1)?

He is none other than God's Beloved Son.

II. The Forerunner of Jesus Christ (vv. 2-8).

1. Who he was (vv. 2,3).

He was John, the Baptist, who was prophesied of more than five hundred years before (Isa. 40:3).

His mission was to prepare the way for Christ's coming. He represented himself as but a voice of one crying in the wilderness. He was therefore God's voice sounding forth the divine will and purpose. He was content to be but a voice.

2. John's message (vv. 3-8).

(1). Prepare ye the way of the Lord (v. 3).

It was customary for servants to go before distinguished personages and prepare the road over which they were to travel. In this preparation there was to be removal of stones, the leveling of the surface, etc. John's message meant therefore that the people should remove from their hearts everything which hindered the coming of the Lord.

(2). The baptism of repentance (v. 4).

In preparation for the coming Christ the people were to repent of their sins. Those who repented were to be baptized. Baptism was to be administered to those who repented as an expression of penitence which led to forgiveness of sins.

(3). The coming of the Messiah (vv. 7, 8).

The coming one was to be much greater than himself; so great that John was unworthy to loose the latch of His shoes. The superior dignity of Christ was not only in His person but in the work He was to perform.

3. His success (v. 8).

People from all over Judea and Jerusalem went out and were baptized. His food and dress indicated that he had withdrawn from the world as a protest against its follies and sins.

(1). The Baptism of Jesus Christ (vv. 9-11).

Jesus was not baptized because He had sinned and therefore needed repentance, but because He was now about to accomplish a work which would constitute the basis of all righteousness. He was now dedicating Himself to the task of bringing in righteousness through His sacrificial death.

(2). The opened heavens. This indicated His connection with heaven.

(3). The descent of the Spirit upon Him. This gave the divine seal to His work.

(4). The voice of approval from heaven. This made clear to John the fact that Jesus was the Messiah.

4V. Jesus Christ Tempted by Satan (vv. 12,13).

This took place immediately after the heavenly recognition. This testing was to demonstrate the reality of the incarnation. Because of this demonstration believers can be assured that the Son of God has become incorporated with humanity for the purpose of its salvation.

From Beginning to End

But the land, whither ye go to possess it, is a land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven; a land which the Lord thy God careth for; the eyes of the Lord thy God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year.—Deut. 11:10-12.

Community Christmas, Supper and Tree

Christmas was well celebrated in our village, beginning with the community tree and entertainment. A delicious supper was served at six o'clock by the Circle, committee: Mrs. Ida Morgan and Mrs. L. Millett. The Christmas supper is always free to the children, but this year the supper was free for the grown people as well as the children. As soon as the supper was finished, everyone went over to the church, where a stately tree was beautifully decorated with colored lights and sparkling ornaments. The children marched to the front of the church singing one of the beautiful Christmas Hymns. A devotional service followed after which there was a short entertainment of songs, recitations and exercises. Two of our little three year olds, "Billy" Filibrown and Calvin Hamlin, made their first appearance before an audience, with a song and a recitation. At the close of the entertainment the children hastened back to the Community House, where "Santa" was waiting with a tree that had been filled with gifts for the children, and the grown people were not forgotten, for "Santa's" young helpers were often sent to the older people with attractive packages. Several children were unable to attend this public celebration on account of illness.

There were several family Christmas trees and dinners also. At L. R. Rounds' the guests were C. D. Morse, W. W. Filibrown and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Urban Tyler entertained Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Tyler; Winfield Brown and wife were supper guests at Dr. Hubbard's; Miss Mabel Gage entertained E. L. Stone, wife and daughter, Louise, Mrs. Jane Stone and Mrs. Nancy Jovett; Miss Carrie Plummer, at the Gage home.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Morgan ate Christmas dinner with relatives in South Paris, Monday.

Mrs. Nellie Stone and daughter, Katherine, spent Christmas at Bridgton.

Madame Hubbard, who is spending the winter with her son, Dr. R. B. Hubbard, has been ill with grippe, but is some better.

Miss Gage, who has been staying in Waterford for a month, went to Worcester, Mass., on Tuesday. She has enjoyed her holidays here and has done much to make other people enjoy them also.

OTISFIELD

Cyrus W. Stone to Be Buried at Otisfield

The funeral of Cyrus W. Stone, who made his home with his twin sisters, Mrs. Nettie P. Mayberry and Miss Nellie P. Stone, 17 Concord St., was held at the family home. Rev. C. J. Coving of the First Universalist Church officiated.

There were many friends and relatives gathered and there was a profusion of flowers. The body was placed in a tomb at Forest Dale and Rev. Mr. Coving conducted the funeral. In May it will be taken to his native place at Otisfield, Me. for interment in the family lot.

Mr. Stone was in his 82nd year and had lived all his life in Otisfield until seven years ago when he went to Massachusetts. During his entire life he had never spent a day in bed until his final illness. He was in bed but ten days with scarcely any suffering. He was unmarried and was a member of Crooked River Lodge of Masons at Harrison, Me. for 53 years. He is survived only by his twin sisters.

Swivel Chair Farm Notes

A tightly built barn will be damp and foul unless ventilation is provided.

The Bureau of Dairy Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture estimates that the cost of raising a cow costs the members less than one cent per day per cow on the average.

Hampers and barrels for shipping cabbage are rapidly being replaced by crates. Crates are sturdier, easier to load, they allow better ventilation, and permit the cabbage to be displayed more effectively.

The eastern red cedar should not be planted anywhere near apple orchards because the disease known as cedar rust spreads from this tree to the leaves and fruit of apple trees.

The diseases of cabbage also occur on cauliflower, turnips, Brussels sprouts, kale and on some of the weeds related to the cabbage family such as mustard. These crops should be avoided in the rotation with cabbage and all related weeds should be kept down.

Producers can increase their effectiveness by decreasing costs of production. In every region there are some men producing at much less cost than the great majority of their neighbors, whereas others are producing at costs much above the average.

It is well for the hog grower to select from his pig crop each year, if possible, a few gilts that will improve the breeding herd. An outstanding animal may sometimes be picked out soon after weaning, but generally it is best to wait until the pigs are from 5 to 6 months of age.

When weather conditions such as hail, drought or frost prevent the maturing of corn for the silo, it may be cut while still immature and produce a fair grade of silage. A good practice is to mix such corn with some which is more mature. Silage from immature corn will be more sour than usual and more difficult to feed in large quantities, a trouble that can be avoided by care in feeding.

Cleanliness is absolutely essential to the successful raising of calves. Nearly all disorders or diseases of the calf are caused either directly or indirectly by lack of cleanliness. It is important that all milk and other feeds be fresh and clean. Keep calf pens clean and filled with plenty of dry bedding. Exercise great care in washing the calf's pails. Scald these thoroughly with boiling water, or sterilize with steam if possible. Remove discarded feed from feed boxes, and thoroughly brush and clean the boxes each day.

Our farm woodlands contain many crooked, forked, diseased trees which should give way to straight sound ones. Right cutting includes also the removal of large sound trees, whose growth is slow, because they are nearing or have reached maturity. Following a thinning, the remaining trees show an increased growth, and the whole woodland is enhanced in value. With an active market for cord wood and with the use of treated fence posts and poles an opportunity is afforded for thinning overwooded stands, especially old-field pine and clearing out the interior trees.

Speaking before a recent session of the International Congress of Soil Science held in Washington, an eminent Dutch soil scientist told the delegates that the absolute population limit of the human race is about eight billion persons. He based his conclusions on a very intensive study which he has made of crop capacities of all sections of the world. He says "the land of the earth will feed eight billion people if the most efficient farming methods now being used are applied to all land which will raise a crop."

Specialists have found that the meat proteins not only have as high food value when eaten in a mixed diet as when eaten alone, but they greatly increase the nutritive value of the cereal or vegetable proteins. Thus the proteins of a ham sandwich become more nutritious when eaten in combination with the meat.

There are three points to remember in preparing a vegetable dinner. First there must be a variety of flavor. As far as flavor is concerned, a good combination is one mild-flavored vegetable such as potatoes, especially if done during the winter, or lima beans; one vegetable of pronounced flavor, like cauliflower, cabbage, or onions, one which is either sour itself or may be served with vinegar—spinach or beets, for instance. Second, there must be a variety of texture. A variety in texture is obtained by having one vegetable with a crisp crust, like corn fritters, or scalloped tomatoes; a second vegetable served with sauce; and a third simply cooked in water, as string beans are usually cooked. A raw vegetable, such as celery or radishes, lends still further variety. The third point to remember in connection with a vegetable dinner is to include some protein foods in the meal. As a rule, one of the vegetables should be beans, or peas, which are comparatively rich in protein. Or one of the vegetables may be served with a protein food, such as cheese, milk, eggs, or chopped meat. Examples of vegetables combined with protein foods are green peppers or tomatoes stuffed with meat mixture, cauliflower or potatoes scalloped with cheese, spinach with hard-boiled eggs, and sweet corn pudding made with milk or eggs.

Cottage cheese is high in food value. It contains all the constituents of milk excepting the cream. Like milk, cottage cheese is a source of protein, which is used to build or repair body tissue. There are many dishes which can be made with cottage cheese. Cottage cheese served plain is especially pleasing in summer. Many people like it with rich cream, a little salt, or with cream and sugar. Sour cream, or melted butter, improves the flavor of cottage cheese, and increases the food value. Cottage cheese makes a delicious sandwich filling. Especially for the picnic season of the year. For sandwiches, moisten the cheese with sweet cream, and flavor it with a little chopped parsley, chopped or sliced olives, sliced celery, pimientos, horseradish, Spanish onions, pickles or nuts. Some people like the flavor of curaway seeds in cottage cheese. This spread is equally good on white bread, rye bread, nut bread or brown bread.

Washing eggs reduces their keeping quality and results in losses, especially if they are to be placed in storage. All very small, very large, or very dirty eggs should be used at home or sold to local consumers and not included with those shipped to market.

The United States Department of Agriculture always advocates the use of both purebred sires and dams in raising hogs for market. While a good purebred sow will cost more than a scrub or grade, experience has shown there is a distinct saving of feed in fattening purebreds as compared to grades.

About 3 days before farrowing the sow should be confined to the pen or house she will occupy during the farrowing period. Thoroughly clean the pen, which should be about 7 by 7 feet in size, and see that it is dry, well ventilated, and provided with a guard rail made by placing 2-by-4 inch pieces around the inside of the pen about 10 inches from the floor and from 4 to 6 inches from the sides.

This will often prevent the sow from crushing a pig when she lies down. Remove all bedding, sweep the floor and sides, and wash with scalding water and lye. When dry, bed the pen with good, clean, dry bedding, such as wheat or rye straw, short or chopped hay, or shavings of corn fodder. Do not use oat straw, as it retains moisture and becomes foul too easily.

The poultry industry of the United States is a billion dollar industry. In fact, it has passed well beyond that value and has become one of the leading agricultural industries of the country. Chicken egg production on farms is in the neighborhood of 2,000,000,000 dozen annually with a value of $600,000,000 or more, while the number of poultry raised each year is approaching three quarters of a billion with an approximate value of $500,000,000. These production and value figures include farm production only, and do not embrace the village and city production which, if its extent were known, would undoubtedly swell the totals considerably.

Grass for Swine—Grass, some variety of which can be produced on most every farm, is the cheapest feed for hogs, according to E. Z. Russell, swine specialist of the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture. Alfalfa is the best hog pasture and red clover a close second, while all clovers are good. Some farmers probably cannot arrange permanent pastures, but many different temporary pastures may be provided, rye, rape, soybeans, corn, peas and oats are all good. When hogs are on pasture practically all the manure is saved, whereas when they are in dry lots some is unavoidably wasted.

To make mint sauce for lamb, chop ¼ cup of mint leaves very fine, put them in ½ cup of vinegar with 1 tablespoonful of sugar, and let stand an hour before serving.

Rice and potatoes are not exactly the same in food value, although both are rich in starch. Potatoes contain some minerals and vitamins in addition to starch. Milled rice is entirely devoid of these. However, when plenty of fruit and vegetables are used in the daily meals, using rice instead of potatoes makes little difference in nutrition.

To cook tougher cuts of meat, either the meat may be finely ground, cutting through the connective tissues which causes the comparative toughness, or the meat may be simmered slowly for a long time, to soften and gelatinize the connective tissue, as in cooking stew or pot roast. The same principle applies whether the meat is boiled, stewed, braised or smothered.

Spider corn bread is so-called because it is baked in a heavy iron spider or skillet instead of in an ordinary baking pan. Custard corn cake and spoon bread are variations in the proportion of the different ingredients, resulting in breads of different consistency, all of which are soft enough to be served with a spoon and eaten with forks.

Strong alkalis dissolve both wool and silk and even wearing soda, or strongly alkaline soap often seriously injures these fibers. The only alkalis that should be used in laundering or removing stains from wool and silk are the milder ones like borax or dilute solutions of ammonia. With the exception of nitric acid, dilute acids do not attack wool and silk readily. Bleaching agents containing chlorine are very destructive to both wool and silk and should not be used. The use of very hot water should also be avoided. Excessive rubbing felts wool and shrinks it, while silk fabrics are likely to be torn. The removal of stains from wool and silk must be done with great care.

Grapes or similar vines hamper the growth of trees shading out their foliage.

American co-operative associations marketing poultry or eggs or both have a total membership exceeding 50,000 and an annual business estimated at more than $40,000,000.

Trees with straight trunk trunks are more valuable than rough, limby wood. When trees are properly spaced, nature "self prunes" the lower branches. But in small farm-forest tracts with valuable kinds of trees pruning is often profitable, especially if done during the winter. The pruning of black locust, however, is probably not advisable because of the danger of increasing infestation by the locust tree borer.

A supply of pure water is essential to the health of the family. Investigations indicate that about 3 out of 4 shallow wells are badly polluted. Wells and springs are fed by ground water, which is merely natural drainage. Impurities are carried into the ground water, sometimes reaching distant wells or springs. The principal safeguards are clean ground and wide separation of the well from probable channels of impure drainage water. Only when the surface of the water in a well or spring is at a higher level than any nearby source of filth is there safety from impure seepage.

Hogs multiply very rapidly. By keeping one good sow and her pigs and breeding them rapidly, one can produce more than 300 hogs in 3 years. In view of this rapid increase, the producer can afford to pay a liberal price for a good sow.

One of the most practical ways of getting good cows is to use a proved sire in the herd. Some good sires have caused an annual increase of 100 pounds in butterfat production of each daughter as compared with the production of the daughters' dam.

A large paddock or lot in connection with the stable helps considerably to keep in fit condition horses that are worked irregularly. A series of sodded lots will be found preferable, as, in addition to getting exercise the horse will be benefited by the grass, which acts as a tonic.

It is not an uncommon practice to start feeding silage immediately after the silage is filled. If a sufficient amount is fed daily, this will lessen if not entirely eliminate the usual waste from spoiled silage that is found on top when the opening of the silo is delayed a month or more. Silage still warm from fermentation is not relished by cows at first but will produce no ill effects provided it shows no mold. Moldy silage should not be fed.

The quality of timber depends largely upon the density of the stand. High quality timber to a great proportion of its height is free from limbs, the cause of knots; it is tall; and does not decrease rapidly in diameter from the butt to top of last log. In a dense stand of timber there is among the individual trees considerable competition for sunlight, the result of which is that height growth is increased. Trees in crowded stands therefore are usually taller than those in thin stands of the same age.

When trees are so crowded that sunlight does not reach the lower branches, these soon die, become brittle, and fall off or are broken off by the wind, snow, or other agencies. Further, in dense stands the diameters of trees do not decrease rapidly between the butts and tops. The reverse is true of uncrowded trees. For best results in timber growing on farm woods or elsewhere the trees should be so crowded that the crown or top of each individual tree may be in contact with those of its nearest neighbors.

If calves are dropped in the fall they may be weaned the following spring and may be pasture, where they should do well if the pasture is good. Note the change gradually. Those inclined to be unthrifty should get a little grain, but the more vigorous ones will probably not need any additional feed.

Fattening improves chicken meat. This improvement, had not more added weight is the main object of fattening. Putting on fat for fat's sake is purely secondary. When a chicken has been properly fattened, much of the water in its flesh is replaced by oil, so that when the chicken is cooked, its flesh becomes tender and juicy. A suitable fattening ration for chickens can be made from a variety of grains. Here is one:

6 parts of weight of cornmeal, 2 parts ground oats, without hulls, 1-2 parts middlings and 1-2 part meat scraps. Mix with milk, using 2 pints of milk to 1 pound of mash. When you first put the broilers on the fattening ration be careful not to overfeed. Keep them with keen appetites, especially for the first few days. Then gradually increase the amount fed each time until toward the latter part of the fattening period the broilers are getting all they will eat. Compound solution of cresol is one of the best disinfectants for chicken roosts. It contains 50 per cent. of cresol. Add one pint of it to 10 qts. of soft water. That makes a solution of the proper strength to apply to the houses and equipment. Disinfect the roosts and roosting quarters with it thoroughly. It helps keep down the lice and mites.

Whether you are building a new home, remodeling an old one or merely rearranging your kitchen equipment, you will find Farmers' Bulletin 1518-7, "Convenient Kitchens," helpful.

Cottage cheese is high in food value. It contains all the constituents of milk, except the cream. Like milk, cottage cheese is a source of protein, which is used to build and repair body tissues.

After carefully washing it cook rice in a large quantity of actively boiling water, so that it is done through but not soft. Drain in a colander, and set over hot water, covered with a cloth, so each grain will swell and remain separate.

You can have shortcake whenever the season. When fresh peaches are over, bananas are always available, and the dried fruits, such as apricots, prunes, figs, and dates are excellent when made into a thick sauce and served on biscuit dough with whipped cream.

Celeriac, or knob celery, is available in summer-time and is very acceptable when stalk celery is hard to get. It is pared and sliced, like turnips or carrots, cooked in a small quantity of water and seasoned with butter or cream. It also makes an excellent addition to potato salad.

Caramel flavor is easy to make and may be kept on hand. Put half a cup of granulated sugar over the fire and allow it to melt and become brown, without scorching. Add half a cup of hot water and cook about five minutes. Use according to taste in flavoring puddings, cake icing and ice cream.

There are any number of suitable garnishes and flavorings for iced tea. Slices of lemon, orange, or lime are good. A spray of mint is attractive. Candied orange or lemon peel and candied pineapple may be used. Some people like whole cloves, a stick of cinnamon, crystallized ginger or rose geranium leaves with iced tea.

Oranges are a rich source of vitamins and minerals. Children need a constant and abundant supply of these things in their food to help them grow and develop normally. Oranges also have the advantage that they can be given between meals without spoiling the appetite for other foods at the regular meal times.

EAST STONEHAM

Gathering at John Barker's—Injured in Fall from Load of Hay.

A family gathering was held at the home of John Barker on Christmas day. When trees were properly spaced, nature "self prunes" the lower branches. But in small farm-forest tracts with valuable kinds of trees pruning is often profitable, especially if done during the winter. The pruning of black locust, however, is probably not advisable because of the danger of increasing infestation by the locust tree borer.

Elizabeth Dudley returned Wednesday from Freeport where she has been spending her vacation.

There was a young people's social at the vestry, Wednesday.

Mr. Raymond McAllister and June McAllister were callers at Fernando McAllister's, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernal McAllister and family and Mr. and Mrs. Merton McAllister and family took supper at Mr. and Mrs. F. R. McAllister's, Sunday night.

There was a Christmas tree and school entertainment at the K. P. Hall, Friday night. Supper was served at the vestry to a large crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Holt were callers at Raymond McAllister's, Sunday evening.

Harland Littlefield was at home from Auburn over the holidays.

"ROAD COURTESY"

Although the spark of "Road Courtesy" may lately seem to have been entirely extinguished, it begins to look as though all it needed was a little coaxing in the form of a reminder. The increasing number of cars and trucks displaying the little blue and white notices which read: "This Driver will meet all other gentlemen half way on any traffic situation" is ample proof that the motoring public as a whole is at heart not only willing, but eager to follow a co-operative suggestion.

NORWAY LAKE

His Opportunity Lost

The small boy had received many presents on his birthday, but the best of all—a real watering can—arrived just as he was going to bed, and despite his tears and protests the owner of this treasure was told that he could not use it till next morning.

Soon after dawn his mother heard howls of anguish from the garden, and, looking out, she discovered that these came from her small son, who stood in a dreaching rain clad only in his nightshirt, grasping the cherished can in his hand.

"What on earth is the matter?" demanded the anxious mother.
"Oh, oh, oh!" wailed the disappointed one. "I did so want to water the garden, and now God's been and done it!"
